

ADDLESTONE
HEBREW ACADEMY

HEBREW AND JUDAICS TEACHING POSITIONS

Addlestone Hebrew Academy community day school offers the opportunity for four energetic and passionate teachers - or two teaching couples - to positively impact a small, thriving, Southern Jewish community.

QUALIFICATIONS

Candidates should possess a strong Judaics background and understanding of Modern Orthodox or Mesorati observance.

Prior teaching experience with elementary and middle school students is always an asset, though not required.

Ideal candidates are positive role models, who will develop positive relationships with students from diverse backgrounds.

Though not required, candidates with conversational Hebrew fluency will be given priority consideration.

Opportunities for professional and financial growth are available as an administrator at Addlestone, and/or a youth director at one of our partnering synagogues.

OUR MISSION

Addlestone Hebrew Academy (AHA) is one of the oldest Jewish day schools in the United States and the only Jewish Day School in Charleston, South Carolina. Addlestone welcomes and respects all levels of Jewish observance and embraces the concept of Derech Eretz. Addlestone provides an excellent secular and Jewish education for students 12 months through 8th grade, and prepares them to become successful, productive and inquisitive leaders by integrating Jewish values and ethics throughout our curriculum. We encourage students to develop their Jewish identity – proud of their religion, heritage, and the land of Israel – with the confidence and skills to become model citizens in a rapidly-changing world.

WHY CHARLESTON?

Charleston, South Carolina, renowned for its friendly atmosphere, is a lively coastal city enriched by a close-knit and diverse Jewish community. This vibrant community, which includes a significant Israeli population, boasts an array of Jewish amenities, including three Orthodox synagogues, as well as a Conservative and Reform synagogue, Minyan House, Jewish Studies Center, Mikvah, an Eruv, a variety of kosher catering and dining options, and community-wide Jewish events and programming.
